LINCOLN MEMORIAL, Washington, D. C. Design adopted by the Lincoln Memorial Commission on the site of Potomac Park near the River on the axis of the Capitol and the Washington Monument. Designed by Mr. Henry Bacon. It is a monumental structure standing in a broad plain, surrounded by an amphitheatre of hills. Statue of Lincoln is in the center of Memorial, while smaller halls at each side of central space contain second Inaugural and Gettysburg Addresses. Surrounding the walls, incasing these memorials is a colonnade of 36 columns for each of the 36 states in the Union at the time of Lincoln's death.

LINCOLN MEMORIAL, WASHINGTON, D. C. is placed on the axis of the Capitol and the monument. It is a white marble temple, set on an eminence and surrounded on all sides by open spaces. There are 36 columns, one for each state in existence at the time of Lincoln's death, and the names of 48 states which now make the Union are inscribed on the wall above the colonnade. A colossal figure, representing Lincoln seated in a curule chair, faces the entrance. In the south hall is inscribed the Gettysburg Address. In the north hall, lettered in the stone of the wall, is the Second Inaugural Address. So that not only in material form alone is the memorial a temple, its atmosphere is that of a sanctuary

THE UNITED STATES CAPITOL sets on a height overlooking the amphitheater of the Potomac, is one of the largest and statliest buildings in the world. It is 751 feet in length and 350 feet in width, covering three and a half acres. The statue of Freedom on the dome towers 307 feet above the esplanade. The cornerstone was laid by President Washington in 1793; the central building was finished in 1797; and the extensions were first occupied by Congress in 1857 and 1859.

The White House, Washington, D. C., the home of the President of the United States, is a substantial classic structure of Virginia free stone 170 x 86 feet. Geo. Washington selected the site and laid the cornerstone in 1792. The first President to occupy it was Jno. Adams in 1800. It was burned by the British in 1814 during President Madison's administration, who occupied Octagon House, 18th and N. Y. Ave., temporarily as the White House. After its restoration it was painted white to obliterate all marks of the fire. The view here shown is of the north front.

WHITE HOUSE, Washington. The White House has been the home of the Presidents from the time of John Adams to the present. Washington selected the site, laid the corner-stone in 1792, and with his wife inspected the finished building 1799. The building is of Virginia freestone. Washington Monument seen in the background is a stupendous shaft of granite, 555 feet 5⅛ inches in height. The monument was finished in 1885. It is the highest work of masonry in the world.

This great structure is generally regarded as the most stately building IN THE WORLD. Situated in a magnificent park, on a hill whose crest is a hundred feet above the river, it dominates every landscape and lends beauty to every picture. It covers nearly four acres of ground, and cost nearly $15,000,000. The dome is the crowning glory of THE GREAT EDIFICE. It is of iron and weighs nearly nine million pounds. Its iron plates expand and contract [illegible] fluctuation in temperature, but these [illegible] carefully compensated for in the plan [illegible]

THE CAPITOL, WASHINGTON, D.C.

The Capitol stands on a knoll known as Capitol Hill where cross the East-West and North-South axes of Washington. The North Extension contains the Senate Chambers and the South Extension houses Representatives' Hall. The cornerstone of the Capitol was laid by President Washington in 1793. Congress met in the original building for the first time in 1800 but it was not until 1863 that the building was completed substantially as it is today. The Capitol was erected at a total cost of approximately $25,000,000, has a floor space of 14 acres and is perfectly situated in almost 60 acres of beautifully landscaped grounds. The interior is richly decorated, contains almost three hundred noted statues and paintings. The main floor holds most interest to visitors and includes the lofty rotunda, massive bronze doors of the East Portico, the Senate Chamber, the Hall of Representatives, the Marble Room, the President's Room, Statuary Hall and the Hall of Columns. My dear adopted Mother:

Martha and I have been spending the week-end with our class mate Pat Morris at St. Elizabeths' Hospital. She is in charge of the nurses. It is a government hospital for 6,000 mental patients. It is a beautiful place overlooking the Potomac river. But has a lovely apartment and we have had one grand time. Pat met us at the train Friday afternoon with her car and we have been on the go ever since. I haven't had to do any walking for my foot is still very swollen and sore - I may have to go back to the nurse's infirmary. But still pray for me. Martha and Pat insisted that I make this trip for they thought the change would do me good. and certainly it has. Pat is a Baptist and Friday we went to the Calvary Baptist Church - a wonderful service - I'll send you the pamphlet when I get home. I have so much to tell you. After Church we drove to Arlington Cemetary and visited the tomb of the unknown soldier. I can't get over the beauty of the place. Then we drove to Mt. Vernon - that is a sight I'll never forget - Washington certainly knew how to pick a home. I'll write you all about it - Thanks for your understanding letter - no one knows what I go through. I prayed for Walter today - especially hard. I don't think he even thought I'd go away for this week-end - This is my first visit to Washington - hate to leave. I'll see you before Christmas.

The original Hall of Representatives in the U. S. Capitol wherein once resounded the voices and eloquence of Webster, Clay, Adams, Calhoun and others associated with the history of Congress was transformed in 1864 into a National Statuary Hall. The act invited each state to provide for it two statues of their deceased citizens worthy of National Commemoration. A novel feature of this hall is the whispering stones. They are yards apart yet by standing on one of them you can audibly hear a whispered message from a companion standing on another stone in the floor. This view shows the door leading to the rotunda over which is Franzoni's famous clock of "History."

Designed by Latrobe after Greek models, it is a semi-circular hall, with a low-domed ceiling having square caissons of stucco work.

The room is decorated with a screen of Ionic columns of Potomac marble, the white capitals modeled after those of the Temple of Minerva. The columns form a loggia and support a gallery. In front of them is the Bench of the Supreme Court. The chair of the Chief Justice is in the centre, with those of the eight Associates on either side. Outside of the space reserved for Counsel are the seats for spectators. Ranged about the walls is a series of busts of former Chief Justices. This was until 1859 the Senate Chamber, the scene of many a momentous discussion and many a history-making debate. It was here that Webster delivered the celebrated peroration of the Second Reply to Hayne.

The U. S. Capitol was begun in 1793, the cornerstone of which was laid by George Washington. The central building was finished in 1800, one wing in 1811, and was burned by the British in 1814. It ranks today among the noblest architectural objects in the world, its crowning glory being the Statue of Freedom which surmounts its dome 307 ft. above the esplanade. At one end is the U. S. Senate, at the other the U. S. House of Representatives, the combined duties of whose members represent the greatest governmental undertaking in the world. It is 751 ft. in length and 350 ft. in width and covers an area of 8½ acres. On its east central portico the oath of office is administered to each succeeding President by the Chief Justice of the U. The Bureau of Printing and Engraving, Washington, D. C., is a branch of the United States Treasury and the most interesting part of its work is keeping the nation supplied with money. It gives employment to about 4,100 people and its average total daily output is between six and seven million dollars in value, the largest bill printed having a face value of $10,000. Besides the engraving of plates for, and printing United States gold and silver certificates and National Bank notes, it also makes postage and Internal Revenue stamps, checks, bonds and all government paper securities. The new structure as here pictured is the largest of the department buildings, having a total floor space of 13.5 square feet. It is 296 feet by 525 feet, and on the east side are three courts, which add to the great area of windows, for light and air. It is constructed of steel and reinforced concrete throughout and is faced with Indiana limestone.

as seen from Potomac Park, across Tidal Basin.

March 8-22

The Bureau of Printing and Engraving, Washington, D. C., is a branch of the United States Treasury and the most interesting part of its work is keeping the nation supplied with money. It gives employment to about 4,100 people and its average total daily output is between six and seven million dollars in value, the highest bill printed having a face value of $10,000.00. Besides the engraving of plates for, and printing United States gold and silver certificates and National Bank notes, here are also made Postage and Internal Revenue Stamps, checks, bonds and all government paper securities. The new structure as here pictured is the largest of the department buildings, having a total floor space of 45,000 square feet. It is 296 feet by 505 feet, and on the east side are three courts, which add to the great area of windows for light and air. It is constructed of steel and reinforced concrete throughout and is faced with Indiana limestone

My dear Tillie:-

C., also makes all the United States Postage and Revenue Stamps. This view shows the perforating room which occupies 3600 sq. ft. Sheets containing 400 stamps each are fed into perforating machines and split in sheets of 100 each. These are banded in lots of 100 sheets and put up into packages containing 200,000 stamps and are shipped to postmasters throughout the country. Smaller packages are made to order to meet the requisitions from small post-offices. 32,000,000 stamps are made here daily. NEW BUREAU OF ENGRAVING AND PRINTING

The Bureau of Engraving and Printing located on the banks of the Potomac River, within the bounds of the District of Columbia, is the Government's factory for producing its paper money, bonds, revenue, postage and customs stamps, checks, drafts, commissions, permits to purchase liquor and physician's prescription blanks.

The main building is 500 feet long with a depth of 300 feet and a height of 100 feet. The total floor space occupied by the Bureau is 625,000 square feet, or approximately 15 acres. It gives employment to 5000 people, about 3000 of whom are women. There are represented about 45 trades ranging from oiler to the highest skilled letter and portrait engravers.

The yearly output of this establishment is enormous, as will be seen from the fact that during the fiscal year ended June 30, 1927, there were delivered 490,264,868 sheets, having a face value of approximately thirteen billion dollars.

Some idea of the magnitude of the activities of the Bureau may be gained from the following information:

To produce a year's output of currency there are required 1550 tons of paper and 1600 tons of ink. Laid end to end a year's output of notes would make a belt 115,000 miles long and would encircle the earth 4-3/5 times at the equator

To supply the post office with its yearly requirements of postage stamps, 1000 tons of paper are used, 550 tons of ink and 300 tons of gum A year's output of stamps would supply each man, woman and child in the United States with 150 stamps

The stamps produced in a year worked into one piece would make a patchwork of about twenty-five different colors large enough to cover twenty-five 100 acre farms

A special emergency hospital is provided for the employees. The hospital is well equipped and supervised by an experienced physician and four graduate nurses so that injured and sick employees may receive immediate attention

The employees of the Bureau formed themselves into a cooperative association for the purpose of conducting a cafeteria where good substantial and wholesome food is furnished at much less cost than it could be purchased from a private caterer. The association annually elects the officers to conduct the business

It is the custodian of several million books and pamphlets and the supervisory agent of the copyright organization. It has every facility for efficient service —a book carrier that acts with almost human intelligence; a hydraulic window closer; an under ground book tunnel that carries books to the Capitol quicker than the fleetest messenger, and a clock system by which the electric lights are put out. The building covers nearly three and a half acres, has about two thousand windows and cost, with site, over $6,600,000. It is the only government building open to visitors until ten o'clock at night. The Library of Congress, Washington, D. C., faces the east front of the U. S. Capitol with its beautiful grounds intervening. It is the custodian of several million books and pamphlets and the supervisory agent of the copyright organization. It has every facility for efficient service—a book carrier that acts with almost human intelligence, a hydraulic window closer, an underground book tunnel that carries books to the Capitol quicker than the fleetest messenger, and a clock system by which the electric lights are put out. The building covers nearly three and a half acres, has about two thousand windows and cost with site, over $6,600,000. It is the only government building open to visitors until ten o'clock at night. In conception, design, and execution it is a product of American talent, art and workmanship.

THE LIBRARY OF CONGRESS

The Library of Congress faces west on 1st Street, next to the Supreme Court Building and was founded in 1800 by an Act of Congress. It was wiped out by the British in 1814 and again lost two-thirds of its collection by fire in 1851. The cornerstone of the present structure was laid in 1886 and the modern Annex was completed in 1938. The total construction costs exceed $18,000,000. The main building has three floors and its central architectural features are the Central Stair Hall and the great Central Rotunda which is the main public reading room. The Library contains over 5,000,000 volumes, over half as many charts, maps, pamphlets and musical scores. It also displays the original Declaration of Independence, the Constitution of the United States, the Gettysburg Address in Lincoln's own handwriting, an original Gutenberg Bible, and a countless treasure of priceless paintings and sculpture. The Annex has accommodation for 10,000,000 volumes, two immense reading rooms, and 172 private study rooms. (Photo by Tenschert)

Dear Mrs Lowe.-

From all indications we will be home in time for me to take Mother & myself to your place over Labor Day. Rene mentioned in her note she may come also. Drop Mother a note & let us know if OK. Presume Rene may have written you also.

We have had a marvelous trip & experience. I have done no driving & gone thru or portion of 14 states - Penn N.Y. & N. Y State the outstanding, Mack. D.C. Shrine & magnificent - Quebec, Quaint Picturesque & confusing. We will have travelled 5 thousand miles when we reach Plentywood. I expect it will be on Butte by Thurs or Fri. Will take Rene & take a visit a Reno before going to T. Falls. Presume we will spend Sun with you & return home Mon. - Unless Rene & the others have written differently.

The Declaration of Independence and the engrossed original of the Constitution have been transferred from the Library of the State Department and are now on exhibition in the beautiful marble hall in the Library of Congress. Between two windows on the west wall of the second floor gallery a niche has been cut in which the Declaration is enshrined. In a marble case standing on the floor in front of the Declaration is the Constitution of the United States. Both historic papers are protected by a glass which has been chemically treated so as to exclude all injurious light.

MOSAIC MANTEL.—By Frederick Dielman. Representatives' Reading Room.

HISTORY.—In the center stands the Muse of History with recording pen and gold-clasped volume. In the panels are names of great historians: Herodotus, Thucydides, Polybius, Livy, Tacitus, Bæda, Comines, Hume, Gibbon, Niebuhr, Guizot, Ranke, Bancroft, Motley. On the left side sits Mythology with recording stylus and globe symbolic of the myths of the worlds. Beside her are a winged Sphinx and Pandora's box. On the right is the venerable figure of Tradition, and by her with a lyre sits a youthful poet, who will sing the story that she tells. In the distance back of Mythology, rise the Pyramids, back of History the Parthenon, and beyond Tradition the Colosseum.

ADONIS, the young hunter loved by Venus, unmindful of the entreaties of the goddess, left her side to hunt the wild boar, by which he was slain. Venus discovers him.

She looks upon his lips, and they are pale;
She takes him by the hand, and that is cold;
She whispers in his ears a heavy tale,
As if they heard the woeful words she told.

THE BOY OF WINANDER — BY H. O. WALKER

There was a boy; ye knew him well, ye cliffs
And islands of Winander: — many a time,
At evening, when the earliest stars began
To move along the edges of the hills,
Rising and setting, would he stand alone,
Beneath the trees, or by the glimmering lake;
And there, with fingers interwoven, both hands
Pressed closely palm to palm and to his mouth
Uplifted, he, as through an instrument,
Blew mimic hootings to the silent owls,
That they might answer him. — Wordsworth

KEATS—ENDYMION. By H. O. Walker.

The story runs that from her silver chariot of the moon, Diana beheld the shepherd boy Endymion asleep upon Mount Latmos; and, enamoured of his beauty, descended to press a kiss upon his lips. Night after night in her course across the heavens, the goddess paused to caress the youth; and Endymion, each time but partially awakened, was conscious of her presence only as the sweet vision of a dream.

PARIS—When Juno, Minerva and Venus contended as to which was the fairest, they left the decision to Paris, a shepherd boy on Mount Ida. To influence him, Juno promised him power, Minerva martial glory, and Venus the most beautiful woman in the world. He decided in favor of Venus, and she gave him Helen, wife of Menelaus, King of Sparta. Paris accordingly repaired to the court of Menelaus, and Helen eloped with him to Troy. The Greeks besieged Troy to recover Helen.

PROMETHEUS,
Library of Congress, Washington, D. C.

PROMETHEUS, having stolen fire from heaven, Jupiter created the first woman, Pandora, for the punishment of mankind, and sent her to Prometheus. He refused her, and vainly cautioned his brother Epimetheus not to accept her. Pandora holds the fateful box, from which were to be let fly into the world all human ills, only Hope remaining to bless mankind.

The Reading Room, Library of Congress, Washington, D. C., is imposing in size and effective in architectural design. It is 100 feet in diameter and 125 feet in height. The pillars are 40 feet high and the windows 32 feet wide. Its walls, tiers of arches, pillars and balustrades are of yellow and red marble; the red coming from Tennessee and Numidia, the yellow from Siena. This view is from the Visitors' Gallery the railing of which is surmounted by sixteen bronze statues, eight of which are of characters distinguished in the several fields of learning and achievement; the other eight being statues symbolic of these characters.

Wade had planned a delightful time at the Department for me. Didn't see Mary so long but one was so kindly appointed to meet Maggie Mary & Reginald Hall and to bear me safely upstairs as we have several things to do in Brooklyn tonight.

The United States Treasury Building is of the Monumental type. With a width of 250 feet on Pennsylvania Avenue, and a depth of 450 feet it covers an entire block. The features of the exterior which gives it dignity are the great colonnade of Ionic columns extending along the Fifteenth Street front and the columned porticoes of the other fronts. The impression of massiveness and security which is given from without is intensified when in the course of the conventional Treasury tour we penetrate the dark corridors and narrow passageways in the lower region of money vaults and time locks.

One of the many interesting departments of the Treasury that have to do with taking care of the wealth of the United States is that of the money washing machines, which wash soiled bills, making practicable the cleansing and restoring to circulation millions of dollars of currency which formerly would have been destroyed. The bills are carried on endless belts between copper rollers immersed in soap suds, rinsed in clear water, dried on gas-heated drums, ironed, and delivered clean and crisp.

Another interesting department is where $1,000,000 is destroyed daily in the macerator, the capacity of which is one ton of pulp

Howdy,

That nice Fall weather we had for 4 days vanished. But it was pleasant while it lasted. TV show was good last night. Lots of mystery plays on - mostly English. Some of their plays are much better than ours - more realistic and no so Hollywoodish.

Copr Treas ID GOJ 7002

The U. S. Treasury, Washington, D. C., is at 15th and Pennsylvania Ave., just east of the White House. It is 486 feet long, 264 feet wide and cost $6,000,000. This Department of the Government manages the Finances of the nation, collects internal revenue and customs duties, pays the expenses of maintaining the Government, prevents counterfeiting through its Secret Service, through its Life Saving Service looks after the safety of the people at sea, and through its Hospital Service, looks after the health of the nation. With its holdings of over a quarter of billion dollars in money it is naturally strongly guarded. A large force of watchmen patrol the building at all times. Electrical alarms are maintained and tested every half hour and enough fire arms are stored to arm a thousand men on the instant. Besides there is connection with Fort Myer, Washington Barracks and the Police Department. Visitors are shown the Cash Room, the Secret Service Museum, the Vaults and safety devices, the process of counting and printing the seal on paper currency, and the macerating of worn-out money.

The Patent Office ranks first among the bureaus of the Interior Department and although the building which houses it is known as "The Patent Office" it is in reality the home of the Interior Department. It has created a surplus of $7,000,000 from the fees received from inventors. There have been over 1,600,000 applications filed since the organization of the office, the patent system of which was invented by Thos. Jefferson.

Dear Carol,

I guess I told you my teacher, Schools of the Nation. We're having a very busy week. Today I rowed. The other day we went to the beach. I am slowly but surely getting through. The weather here is wonderful. Not too hot although I consider it very warm. We went to the show one night. It seems as if we're always going someplace. I guess I'd better get along.

P.S. This is another card, duplicate card.

My dear Dorie: —

We came to Washington on Saturday & you have been in my thoughts every hour since. Leaving here I was about ten years ago, that we were here, most of the time. We are at the Franciscan Monastery — Friday Dodge — Irene Brandt Quade — Luis Marquis — We went to the Franciscan Monastery & it is enormously, like nothing I've ever seen. Of course we got Quade to drive us. He didn't like it much at first in Harrisburg — but he's crazy about Washington now. We are going to Mt. Vernon & Alexandria tomorrow & will be with Stella & Mike the rest of the time. Your letter just came, & I'm so glad to hear from you. & P. M. Love from us — K. H. C.

The Municipal Building, Washington, D. C., located at 14th and Pennsylvania Aves., is the home of the District of Columbia Government. It is a beautiful white marble structure, 243 feet by 196 feet and cost, exclusive of site, nearly $2,000,000. The District of Columbia is under the executive control of three Commissioners, two Civilians and one Army Engineer, who are appointed by the President. Congress makes its laws and pays half of the Municipal expense as an offset against non-assessment for taxes of United States property. Besides the office of the District Commissioners, the Police, Fire and Health Depts. are also located in the Municipal Building. A statue of Alexander P. Shepherd, the last Governor of the District of Columbia, by U. S. J. Dunbar, is erected in front of it.

Night and the magic of electricity have here produced in this striking and effective picture a chiaro-oscuro which in the combination of darkness and light and reflection no artist's brush could create. This is the Famous Aztec Garden, Pan American Annex. Presiding over the pool of water is the Famous "Sad Indian" the most precious relic of the Aztecs. The Annex is of a unique architectural design in itself, its principal feature is a three-arched loggia finished in tiles of variegated colors whose arrangement and grouping of figures get their inspiration from the ruins of the Aztecs in Mexico and the Incas in Peru.

The Lincoln Memorial, a classic Greek structure of white marble is situated on an eminence in Potomac Park on the banks of the Potomac River. The statue of Lincoln by Daniel C. French is in the central hall, and smaller halls contain the Second Inaugural and the Gettysburg Addresses. Surrounding the walls incasing these memorials is a colonnade of 36 columns for the 36 states in the Union at the time of Lincoln's death. Especially entrancing is this view taken when the sun was setting behind the Virginia hills.

The Lincoln Memorial, modeled after a classic Greek Temple, is situated on an eminence in Potomac Park on the banks of the Potomac River. It is a monumental marble structure and a worthy and fitting memorial to Abraham Lincoln. Statue of Lincoln (by Daniel French) is in the center of memorial, while smaller halls at each side of central space contain Second Inaugural and Gettysburg addresses. Surrounding the walls incasing these memorials is a colonnade of 36 columns for each of the 36 States in the Union at the time of Lincoln's death. Immediately in front of the Memorial is a large reflecting pool, the placid waters of which mirror the classic lines of this beautiful Temple and the Washington Monument.

LINCOLN MEMORIAL FROM ACROSS THE POTOMAC, WASHINGTON, D. C.

The Lincoln Memorial is the most magnificent and classically perfect memorial in the Western Hemisphere, if not in the world. It is situated in Potomac Park near the river, on the axis of the Capitol and the Washington Monument. It is monumental in design, thirty-one Doric columns, each forty feet in height, surround the structure, they representing the thirty-one States in the Union at the time of Lincoln's death.

This superb structure is a fitting tribute to a great man, Abraham Lincoln. It is of classic Greek architecture, and the colonnade of 36 columns represent the 36 States, which comprised the Union at the time of Lincoln's death. Inside this beautiful temple is the monumental statue of Lincoln by Daniel French.

Looking across the Tidal Basin one sees in the foreground Potomac Park, one of Washington's most beautiful reservations. Open Air concerts are rendered here weekly by the U. S. Marine Band also known as "The President's Own." It is the best equipped Military Band in the United States and has been in existence for over a century. In the distance can be seen the Washington Monument, Bureau of Engraving & Printing, Post Office, Willard Hotel and the Bureau of American Republics.

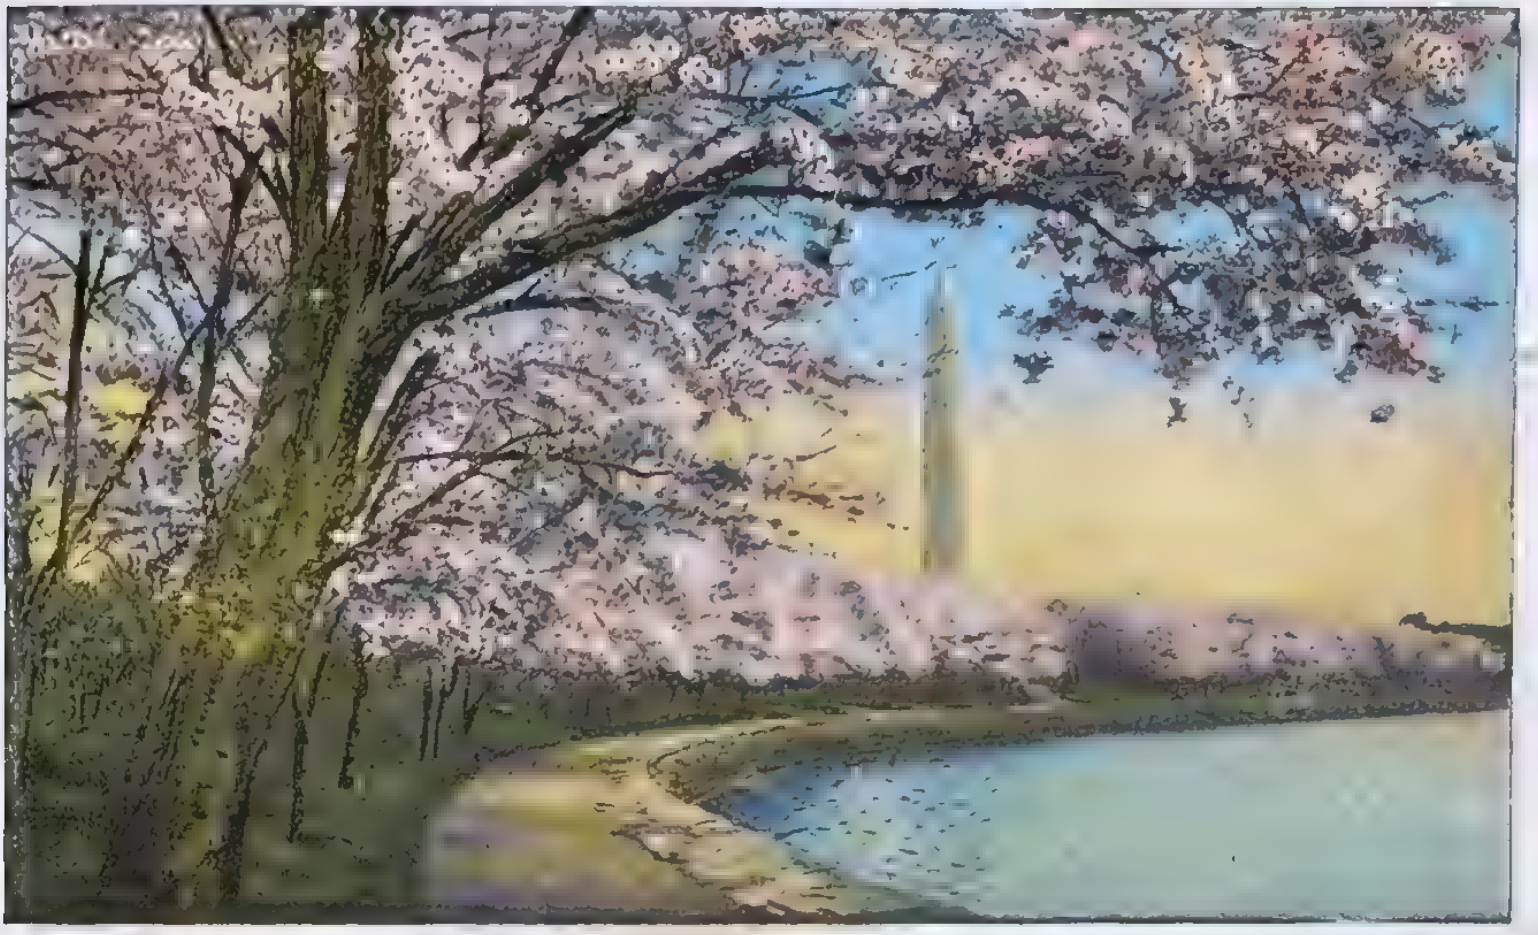
They bloom here in April & Oh we like pretty? Just called with Eunice Harold on phone - Well time with him tomorrow & have a corn roast-Farewell & Success to the Red Cross Night & Knights all afternoon.

WASHINGTON MONUMENT AND CHERRY BLOSSOMS, WASHINGTON, D. C.



One of the beautiful scenes at Washington is at the time when the Cherry Blossoms are in bloom along the Riverside Drive at Potomac Park. The Cherry Blossom trees were presented to the United States Government by the Japanese. The Japanese Government has done justice to the beautiful vistas which present themselves from almost every angle at this point.

a little visiting I will do and I have not heard from Ronald as yet you didn't mention about the dress
I spoke I - don't hesitate to say if you don't want to follow with it if you don't care to follow - I will understand it may just be a suggestion
I can readily give it elsewhere-sometimes detour is more than

Dear Captain Simpson,

Have not been to the U.S. Little House yet but plan to go there - We four are at the Y.W.C.A. It is in the nicest Western part of Washington - We eat in a lovely cafeteria right next door. Have been on a sight seeing tour already and I think the Lincoln memorial is just wonderful. Have not used my birthday present yet but I am going to. Had a grand trip down. Have a lovely place to stay. Everyone is so friendly

Go where one may about Washington, the WASHINGTON MONUMENT is a conspicuous and dominating feature of the landscape. With the varying lights and shades of the hours it presents a constantly changing aspect. Particularly pleasing is the view which shows the tremendous shaft mirrored in the placid Potomac. The height of the Monument is 555 feet 5⅛ inches. It is the tallest structure of masonry in the world.

THE FREER ART GALLERY is situated in the Mall, near the Smithsonian Institution. The building and its wonderful collection of paintings, very old jades, porcelains, etc., was presented to the United States by the late Charles L. Freer. Among its valuable objects is the Famous Peacock Room by Whistler. The greatest care has been taken by the highest skill of experts that all dates given are authentic and all antiques may be considered genuine.

The New National Museum is under the direction of the Smithsonian Institution and supported by annual appropriations by Congress. It has a frontage of 361 feet on the mall opposite the Old National Museum, a depth of 327 feet, a height of 116 feet and cost $1,500,000. No greater opportunity for scientific research is found anywhere in the world than the combined collections in the Old and New National Museums at Washington. Here one may see any sort of exhibit from a huge mastodon to a few grains of sand, may trace human progress from ante-diluvian days to twentieth century civilization, may gaze upon skeletons of huge extinct animals, behold a collection of nearly 13,000 different species of birds, or view historic and personal relics of priceless value.

5076.—The New National Museum in the Mall is a massive and dignified structure of granite, 561x365 feet in area, being greater than any other Government building except the Capitol.

Beautiful Washington Quality Series.
[B. S. Reynolds Co., Washington, D. C.]

The New National Museum is under the direction of the Smithsonian Institution and supported by annual appropriations by Congress. It has a frontage of 561 feet on the Mall opposite the Old National Museum, a depth of 365 feet, a height of 82 feet, and cost $3,500,000. No greater opportunity for scientific research is found anywhere in the world than the combined collection of the Old and New National Museum at Washington. Here one may see any sort of exhibit from a huge meteorite to a few grains of sand, may trace human progress from antediluvian days to twentieth century civilization, may gaze upon skeletons of huge extinct animals, behold a collection of nearly 13,000 different species of birds or view historic and personal relics of priceless value.

GRANT AND HIS GENERALS. This painting, authorized by President Lincoln in 1864, of the 27 leading Union generals of the Civil War was made in 1864-1865 by the celebrated Norwegian artist, Ole Peter Hansen Balling, who served as colonel in the Union Army. All these portraits were made from life. The original painting 10x16 feet was exhibited in New York City in 1866 and there received the written approval and admiration of the generals themselves. It now hangs in the National Museum at Washington

THE CHURCH OF THE PILGRIMS, WASHINGTON, D. C 2911-29

THE CHURCH OF THE PILGRIMS, on the Parkway at 22nd and "P" Sts. N. W., the gift of the Presbyterians of the South, was built to increase the influence of the Lord Jesus Christ at the Capital of the Nation. It is a "House of Prayer for all people."

The pews have been presented by towns in many states. Memorial gifts enrich the edifice with an atmosphere of love and faith. The cornerstone containing the names of twenty thousand partners in the enterprise is inscribed "Jesus Christus, Vita Veritas, Vita, Salvator, Dominus."

The Church, Church-House, and Manse, form a poem in stone whose beauty and significance stir the heart and ennoble the will.

Apse, Choir and Crossing Piers Viewed from the South.

A superb view of the Cathedral-in-the-making is possible from the south, especially in the Bishop's Garden where the eye catches the Gothic grandeur of the completed Apse rising 147 feet, a glorious promise of the inspiring beauty of the whole edifice. The Apse was begun in 1915 and was the gift of Mrs. Archibald D. Russell in memory of her mother, Mrs. Percy R. Pyne. Then come the five bays of the choir, rich in architectural symbolism and now structurally complete. Dominant in the picture are the four crossing piers, ultimately to support the great central tower, which have now been lifted to the triforium level. Each pier is 17 feet in diameter and contains approximately 1,000 cubic feet of stone.

Glastonbury Cathedra and Hilda Stone.

Glastonbury Cathedra, made of stones from Glastonbury Abbey, England, the church in which King Arthur and Guinievere were buried, carries one back in thought to the beginning of Christianity in the British Isles. It recalls the tradition that the first Church at Glastonbury was built by Joseph of Arimathea who gave up his garden tomb for the Crucified Body of Our Lord. Mr. Stanley Austin who gave the Glastonbury Thorn to Washington Cathedral also sent stones for a Bishop's Chair or Cathedra. They are beautifully carved and the inscription sets forth that the Cathedra is "raised as a witness of the Continuity of the Anglican Church." The Glastonbury Cathedra is now in the Little Sanctuary but later will be given a place of honor in the Cathedral proper. Nearby is the Hilda Stone from Whitby Abbey which contains temporarily "The Book of Remembrance" in which are inscribed the names of more than 33,000 men and women who have made their offerings toward the fulfillment of the Cathedral ideal in the Nation's Capital.

The Glastonbury Thorn.

This scion of the famous Holy Thorn at Glastonbury Abbey, England, celebrated in song and story for its occasional Christmas blossoming in honor of Christ, is now a sturdy tree. The slip from which it was grown was presented to Washington Cathedral by Mr. Stanley Austin, owner of Glastonbury Abbey and son of the then poet laureate of England. When the Prince of Wales visited Washington in 1919, a bloom from the Glastonbury Thorn on Mt. St. Alban was placed in a silver box and presented to him, thus carrying out in the New World the ancient rite observed when the original Glastonbury Thorn was visited by royalty.

The Bethlehem Chapel of the Holy Nativity.

A beautiful example of Gothic architecture, The Bethlehem Chapel as a memorial to the Right Reverend Henry Yates Satterlee, D.D., LL.D., first Bishop of Washington, was the first of the crypt chapels of Washington Cathedral to be completed. Every detail of the Chapel tells some part of the story of the Nativity of Christ. Since 1912 daily services have been held in this Chapel, not to mention many special services notable in the history of the Nation. Bishop Satterlee's monument and recumbent figure is behind the altar and directly beneath the location of the high altar of the Cathedral. Among other noted persons, who have found sepulture in the Bethlehem Chapel are Woodrow Wilson, President of the United States; George Dewey, Admiral of the Navy; the Right Reverend Thomas John Claggett, D.D., first Bishop of Maryland and first Bishop to be consecrated on American soil; Henry Vaughan, one of the original architects of the Cathedral; Henry White, distinguished Ambassador and diplomat; Melville E. The altar and reredos in the Bethlehem Chapel of the Holy Nativity are noted for their beauty and wealth of detail. The four columns surrounding the Altar and the tomb of Bishop Satterlee behind it rest upon the Foundation Stone of Washington Cathedral which was brought from the fields of Bethlehem in 1907 and bears the inscription: "The Word was Made Flesh and Dwelt Among us." The central panel of the reredos shows the Nativity of Our Lord, and is surrounded by an enrichment representing the lilies of the field. At each side of the central panel are two vaulted niches in which are the figures of the Four Evangelists—St. Matthew, St. Mark, St. Luke and St. John—each with his symbol. The enrichment around the reredos represents the leaf, seed pod and blossom of the Glastonbury Thorn taken from the tree now growing on the Cathedral grounds.

Washington Cathedral (Episcopal)

Located on the summit of Mount Saint Alban, the most commanding site in the District of Columbia, the central tower of the Cathedral, 262 feet high, will rise 107 feet above the Washington Monument. The Cathedral is being built through contributions of citizens in all parts of the country, to symbolize and stimulate the religious life of the nation. It will be one of the great Cathedrals of the world—534 feet long, and larger in area than Notre Dame, Rheims or Westminster Abbey. It is now the last resting place of Woodrow Wilson, Admiral Dewey and other eminent Americans.

The Peace Cross and Cathedral Landmark.

The Peace Cross, an Iona Cross of stone, 20 feet in height was raised on October 23rd, 1898, to commemorate the close of the war with Spain and the first meeting of the General Convention of the Church in the National Capital. At its base for more than a quarter of a century the People's Evensong Services have been held every summer with thousands worshipping under the blue sky. The Cathedral Landmark just below the Peace Cross was the gift of Mrs. Julian James of Washington who gave the last $50,000 to clear the Cathedral Close from debt. This beautiful bronze sundial marks not only the hour of the day but the different seasons of the Christian year.

Pub. exclusively by Ruth Murray Miller, Art Advertising Service, Philadelphia, for Washington Cathedral.

NatCath42

The famous Peace Cross, Mt. St. Albans, was [illegible] to commemorate the conclusion of the Spanish American War and to celebrate the founding of the National Cathedral. It was unveiled October 21, 1898, President McKinley being present and speaking. The view shows the Capital City nestling in the valley below. It is one of the beautiful scenic spots in the world. On a Sunday afternoon at one of the open-air services, the scene is most wonderfully restful and impressive.

Canterbury Ambon or Cathedral Pulpit.

An impressive witness of the continuity of Christianity through the ages and a treasured link of Washington Cathedral with the Mother Church of England is the Canterbury ambon or great Pulpit made of stones from Canterbury Cathedral. This was presented by the Most Reverend Randall H. Davidson, formerly Archbishop of Canterbury and the Dean and Chapter of Canterbury in memory of Stephen Langton, who led the Barons of England when the Magna Charta was wrested from King John. From this pulpit in the completed Cathedral will issue through the years ringing messages from clerical and lay prophets. The central bas relief depicts the progressive efforts of generations to give the Bible to the people in their own language.

THE MAYFLOWER is a hotel in keeping with the grandeur and beauty of the Nation's Capital. It is located on Connecticut Avenue, the "Fifth Avenue" of Washington, center of smart shops, near Government Departments, Embassies and on the threshold of the exclusive residential section. Its Promenade, Presidential Room, Palm Court and Garden are considered among the most beautiful rooms in the United States.

The day the Mayflower cashier wouldn't give Truman credit

That's Harry S, the haberdasher who became President, not Barney G, the haberdasher who stayed haberdasher and everybody knows Harry Truman. Well, almost everybody

Once, to our blushing embarrassment, somebody at The Mayflower didn't

She was a sweet young thing, new to the city and new to her job as cashier at The Mayflower In the town she came from people didn't meet history book heroes in the flesh, so when the former pres dent came to check out, it never crossed her mind that he could be THE Truman. So she asked to see his credit card. He didn't have one So she said she'd call the Credit Manager (that's Mayflower procedure).

But she smiled when she said it (that's also Mayflower procedure) And the credit manager explained to her gently that Presidents of the United States don't need credit cards

No, she didn't get fired, instead she had her picture taken with Mr. Truman. As for Mr. Truman he was delighted to receive the privacy and anonymity that famous people yearn for but rarely get On the other hand, if Barney G Truman came in, he'd be impressed, because The Mayflower has just one class of service Very Important.

It works We don't lose any Presidents that way—and we keep people like Barney and you coming back for more

The National Hotel, Washington, D.C., is one of the old land marks along historic Pennsylvania Ave., and although it was built in 1827 it is modern in equipment and appointment. It has housed many of the greatest men who have contributed to the history of America. President Lincoln was feted here; Gen. Andrew Jackson, Gen. Wm. Henry Harrison, Jas. K. Polk, Daniel Webster, John Quincy Adams, Chief Justice Taney and many latter-day Senators and Representatives have made it their home. Here also Henry Clay lived and died. It is within five minutes' walk of the U. S. Capitol.

POST OFFICE DEPARTMENT, WASHINGTON, D C.
With its immense and lofty tower rising 300 feet in the air, this gray granite building is a striking feature of Pennsylvania Avenue. It has unique interest because here is the heart of the one department of the Government with which each one of us is in close and constant touch. The Dead Letter Museum, containing numberless curios taken from the unclaimed letters, is the most interesting feature to the visitor.

The Post Office Dept. at Washington is the largest single governmental establishment in the world. Some idea of the immensity of its business may be gleaned from the fact that its distribution of stamps, stamped envelopes, newspaper wrappers and postal cards to Post Offices throughout the country is upward of eleven billion pieces annually, and that it costs half a million dollars a year to keep its mail bag department in proper condition. More than half of all the employees of the Government are at work under the direction of the Postmaster General, whose office is in the building pictured. Herein is also the Dead Letter Office, to which is annually returned about 20,000,000 pieces of undeliverable mail and Post Cards, 62 per cent of which are returned to sender or forwarded to addressee.

Nannie, it is impossible for me to come over, while you are there this time, I can't lose any more time from work just now, I certainly am sorry you go up there any time this summer, I will come over. Aunt Fannie told me to tell you to be sure and come over to see her while you are there, and let her know if you come in the morning or evening, and she will meet you at the station, try to come now, and come to see me too.

Good-bye.

When one emerges from the train and enters the Passenger Concourse of the Union Station at Washington, he finds himself in what is the largest room under one roof in existence. The Concourse is 760 feet in length. The Main Waiting Room is 220x130 feet, with a height of 120 feet, and in each end is a circular window 75 feet in diameter. An army of 50,000 men could stand on the floor. The Union Station is one of the great terminals of the world. The structure is of the monumental type. In the plaza is seen the Columbus Fountain.

The Speedway, Washington, D. C., showing John Paul Jones Monument, Washington Monument, Tidal Basin, and New Bureau of Engraving and Printing.

The Speedway, Washington, D. C., is a splendidly kept road. It breaks into beautiful vistas both of the hills of Virginia beyond the Potomac River and of the City of Washington as evidenced by this view which shows the Washington Monument, the Paul Jones Monument and the new Bureau of Printing and Engraving in distance to right. Any day in fine weather one may see the President of the U. S., Foreign Ambassadors and Ministers, Judges of the U. S. Supreme Court, Army and Navy Officers, and Senators and Representatives with their families enjoying a spin over its surface.

Lafayette Statue, located on the southeast corner of Lafayette Square, opposite the White House, was provided by an Act of Congress to commemorate the valuable and distinguished services of Lafayette and other French soldiers in the cause of the Colonies. Lafayette, who is represented in the uniform of the Continental Army, is receiving a sword which America is presenting to him. The other figures are the celebrated Frenchmen—Rochambeau, Duportail, D'Estaing and De Grasse.

ROCHAMBEAU STATUE. The magnificent monument to Comte Rochambeau stands in Jackson Place. It was erected by Congress to signalize the gratitude of the American people to the French Republic. It is a replica of a statue in France, and represents Count Rochambeau in the act of ordering the French wing of the allied army at Yorktown to attack the works of Lord Cornwallis. The pedestal and statue are 26 feet high.

Dear Eileen,
We crossed this bridge to go to Arlington ~~Cemetery~~, in Virginia. That's where the unknown soldier's tomb is. Tomorrow we go to Mt. Vernon. Washington's home. (like you more.).

Pennsylvania Avenue is the most historic thoroughfare in America. Over it have passed funeral corteges of each of our martyred Presidents, and after the Civil War the entire Union Army marched through it to be reviewed by President Lincoln. It is the route of parade at each Presidential Inauguration, when thousands of citizens come from every state to partake in the Festivities.

Six thousand feet long between the CAPITOL and the TREASURY building and one hundred and sixty feet wide and besides being the principal thoroughfare of Washington, Pennsylvania Avenue is conceded to be one of the finest as well as one of the most HISTORIC STREETS OF THE WORLD. Magnificent hotels and busy office buildings line its sides, making it a most interesting spectacle to the many visitors of the city. All the historic pageant's of a great nation's capitol sweep up and down this broad thoroughfare, and often as many as 300,000 people gather to witness them.

The Star-Spangled Banner.

Oh say, can you see by the dawn's early light,
What so proudly we hail'd at twilight's last gleaming
Whose broad stripes and bright stars thro' the perilous fight,
O'er the ramparts we watch'd were so gallantly streaming
And the rockets' red glare the bombs bursting in air
Gave proof thro' the night that our flag was still there
O say does that Star-Spangled Banner yet wave
O'er the land of the free and the home of the brave?

From the shore dimly seen thro' the mists of the deep
Where the foe's haughty host in dread silence reposes,
What is that which the breeze o'er the towering steep,
As it fitfully blows half conceals half discloses
Now it catches the gleam of the morning's first beam,
In full glory reflected now shines on the stream,
'Tis the Star-spangled Banner O long may it wave
O'er the land of the free and the home of the brave!

And where is the hand that so vauntingly swore
That the havoc of war and the battle's confusion
A home and a country should leave us no more?
Their blood has washed out their foul foot-steps' pollution
No refuge could save the hireling and slave
From the terror of flight or the gloom of the grave,
And the Star-Spangled Banner in triumph doth wave
O'er the land of the free and the home of the brave!

And thus be it ever when freemen shall stand
Between their lov'd home and the war's desolation,
Blest with victory and peace may this Heaven-rescued land
Praise the Power that hath made and preserved us a nation,
Then conquer we must when our cause it is just
And this be our motto "In God is our Trust"
And the Star-Spangled Banner O long may it wave
O'er the land of the free and the home of the brave!

Every American knows Francis Scott Key as the author of our national anthem, which he wrote on the British frigate [illegible] during the bombardment of Fort McHenry, which he had gone to arrange for the exchange of prisoners. He had [illegible] for many days and nights, and was detained for a day after the fort he was kept on board a cartel ready under guard when he saw the stars and stripes still floating over the fort he wrote the Star-Spangled Banner. Mr. Key was born in Frederick county, Md. Aug. 1st, 1779. He was a descendant of Francis Scott Key, author of the National Anthem, who died in Baltimore, Md., Jan. 11th, 1843. He was buried in Mount Olivet Cemetery, Frederick, Maryland. [illegible] Washington. [illegible] The Key mansion has been [illegible] and is now occupied as a residence by [illegible]. The Key monument is a handsome and imposing structure and is kept in good repair as it also the monument which marks the resting place of Key and his wife in Mount Olivet Cemetery, Frederick, Maryland.

No. 61543
The National Home for veterans of the regular Army is situated on the outskirts of Washington. It is surrounded by some of the most beautiful and well kept grounds in the United States. It was founded through the active work of Gen. Winfield Scott. Each month every soldier in the regular Army has 12½ cents deducted from his pay which goes towards the maintenance of the home where any disabled soldier or any soldier who has served for 20 years in the regular Army has a right to live. The Cottage shown in picture has served as a retreat for Lincoln and several succeeding Presidents.

No. 61579: The City Hall, Washington, D.C., was built in 1820 from plans drawn by Geo. Hadfield, Architect of the U. S. Capitol. In the open space in front of the building is a marble column surmounted by a statue of Abraham Lincoln. Until 1871 it was occupied jointly by the U. S. Courts for, and the municipal Government of the District of Columbia. In 1873 it became, by purchase, the sole property of the U. S. It is now devoted entirely to judicial purposes, the municipal Government of the District of Columbia being housed in a beautiful $2,000,000 building of its own. Among the notable trials held within it was that of Guiteau, the assassin of President Garfield.

The Star-Spangled Banner.

Oh say, can you see by the dawn's early light,
What so proudly we hail'd at twil ght's last gleaming,
Whose broad stripes and bright stars thro' the perilous fight,
O'er the ramparts we watch'd were so gal antly streaming,
And the rockets red glare the bombs bursting in air,
Gave proof thro' the night that our flag was still there;
O say does that Star Spangled Banner yet wave
O'er the and of the free and the home of the brave?

From the shore dimly seen thro' the mists of the deep
Where the foe's haughty host in dread silence reposes,
What is that which the breeze o'er the towering steep,
As it fitfully blows half conceals half discloses?
Now it catches the gleam of the morning's first beam,
In full glory reflected now shines on the stream;
'Tis the Star-Spangled Banner! O long may it wave
O'er the land of the free and the home of the brave!

And where is the band that so vauntingly swore
That the havoc of war and the battle's confusion
A home and a country should leave us no more?
Their blood has washed out their foul foot-steps' pollution.
No refuge could save the hireling and slave
From the terror of flight or the gloom of the grave,
And the Star-Spangled Banner in triumph doth wave
O'er the land of the free and the home of the brave!

And thus be it ever when freemen shall stand
Between their lov'd home and the war's desolation,
Blest with victory and peace may this Heaven rescu d land
Praise the Power that hath made and preserv'd us a nation;
Then conquer we must when our cause it is just
And this be our motto "In God Is Our Trust,"
And the Star-Spangled Banner, O long may it wave
O'er the land of the free and the home of the brave!

Every American knows Francis Scott Key as the author of our national anthem which he wrote on the British frigate "Surprise" during the bombardment of Fort McHenry, where he had gone to arrange for the exchange of prisoners. Admiral Cockburn received Key courteously but as preparations had been made for attacking the fort he was kept on board, and at early dawn when he saw the stars and stripes still floating over the fort he wrote the Star-Spangled Banner. ¶Key was born in Frederick County, Md., Aug. 1st, 1779. He was educated at Saint John's College, Annapolis, and studied and practiced law in Frederick. In 1801 moved to Washington, died in Baltimore Jan. 11th, 1843, while on a visit to his son-in-law. ¶The Key mansion, his Washington home, is still standing and is reproduced on this card as is also his monument, which marks the resting place of key and his wife, in Mount Olivet Cemetery, Frederick, Maryland.

Washington's pew and that of Col. Robert E. Lee remain unchanged. The chancel rail, the mural tablets of the Apostles' Creed and the Lord's Prayer, the communion table, reading desk and chairs, and the crystal chandelier of brass with its 12 candlesticks, were all used during Washington's time. The record of his purchase of his pew, the day the Church was finished, and the long handled purses used for the collections may be seen in the vestry room.

The imposing 250-foot high Memorial will overlook to the north the city of Washington and to the south Mount Vernon, his home; while to the east lies Alexandria, Virginia, which city he helped to plan. The unusual architectural features and the remarkably landscaped terraced approaches present a striking appearance. It was modelled after the ancient towers which were used as beacons to guide mariners into harbor as exemplified in the beacon at Rhodes. The Memorial will house a priceless collection of memorabilia of Washington, including numerous articles closely connected with his career in the Masonic order. The cost of the Memorial will be $3,000,000. It is being built by the George Washington Masonic National Memorial Association.

The Custis-Lee Mansion, at Arlington, Va., was built in 1802 by Geo. Washington Parke Custis, adopted son of Geo. Washington. The Portico with its great Doric Columns was modeled after that of the Temple of Theseus at Athens. It stands on the brow of a hill with the placid Potomac 200 feet below, the prospect from its porch being one of rare beauty. It has been the scene of lavish hospitality in Post-Revolutionary days when Lafayette was among its distinguished guests. It was afterwards the home of Robert E. Lee, whose wife was Mary Custis, wherein they were married. When the Civil War came and Lee went to Richmond the Mansion was converted into headquarters for Federal troops and its grounds into a camp and a Military Cemetery. It is preserved as it was in the days of Custis and Lee.

"ARLINGTON HOUSE ESTATE."

The lands comprising this estate or property are a part of an original grant of 6,000 acres from William Berkeley, Governor of Virginia, to Robert Howsen, in October 1669, in consideration of the said Howsen having transported a number of settlers into the colony. In the same year Howsen conveyed these lands to John Alexander, the consideration being six hogsheads of tobacco; and on December 25, 1778, Gerald Alexander, to whom the property had descended, conveyed the Arlington Tract about 1,100 acres to John Parke Custis, the consideration named being 1,100 pounds in Virginia currency.

John Parke Custis was the son of Martha Washington by her first marriage. He was aide-de-camp to Washington during the Revolution, and upon his death, November 5, 1781, of camp fever contracted at Yorktown, Washington adopted his two youngest children—George Washington Parke Custis and Eleanor Parke Custis.

George Washington Parke Custis, who inherited the Arlington Estate from his father, was a member of Washington's family until the death of Washington in 1799, and soon after removed to Arlington where he resided until his death, October 10, 1857

By his will, bearing date of March 26, 1855, he devised the "Arlington House Estate" to his daughter and only child, Mary Ann Randolph Lee, wife of Lieut Col Robert E. Lee, U. S Army, for her use and benefit during her natural life, and on her death to his eldest grandson, George Washington Custis Lee, to him and his heirs forever.

By an executive order by the President of the United States dated January 6, 1864, the entire tract of 1,100 acres, more or less, was "selected for Government use for war, military, charitable, and educational purposes," under the provisions of the Acts of Congress of June 7, 1862, and February 6, 1863. By the same order it was directed that the property be sold to meet the payment of $92 07, direct taxes due thereon. This was done January 11, 1864, and the property was bid in for the United States for the sum of $26,800 00. Mrs Lee, having died in 1873, legal proceedings contesting the legality of the tax sale were instituted by George Washington Custis Lee, as heir under the will of his grandfather, George Washington Parke Custis. The cause was heard in the United States Circuit Court for the Eastern District of Virginia, and verdict rendered in his favor, which, upon appeal, was affirmed by the decision of the Supreme Court of the United States, December 4, 1882.

Congress, by act of March 3, 1883, appropriated the sum of $150,000 for the purchase of this property and on March 31, 1883, George Washington Custis Lee conveyed to the United States by deed the title to the property in question for the sum appropriated.

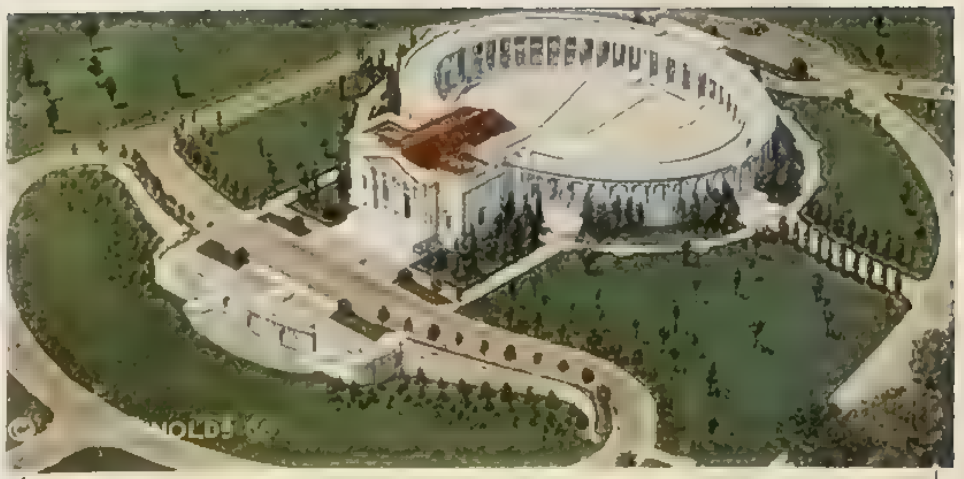
THE MEMORIAL AMPHITHEATRE is situated on an eminence in Arlington, Va., and overlooks Washington. It is built of white marble in the form of an ellipse, the front formed by a Temple facing the Lincoln Memorial across the Potomac in Washington. The view as pictured here was taken from an aeroplane and shows the Amphitheatre turfed and open to the sky above. The cost of the building was $1,000,000. Directly in front is the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier whose body, brought from France by General Pershing, was buried with impressive ceremonies on November 11th, 1921.



HISTORY OF MEMORIAL AMPHITHEATRE, ARLINGTON, VIRGINIA.

SOUTH of the Custis-Lee Mansion at Arlington on a high eminence overlooking Washington, D. C. is the magnificent new Memorial Amphitheatre, constructed of glistening white marble, provided by Congress at the instance of the Grand Army of the Republic, as an enduring memorial of the nation's heroic dead and a suitable assembly place for the thousands in attendance on Decoration Day. The structure of singular grace and compelling beauty is built in the form of an ellipse and follows closely the classic lines of the Theatre of Dionysius at Athens, and the Roman Theatre at Orange, France. It covers an area of 34,000 square feet. There have been provided in the crypt a few places of interment for men who have specially distinguished themselves, and a great many spaces have been left for busts and commemorative tablets to men who have performed meritorious and distinguished services in war.

The building has a seating capacity of 5,000 in the Amphitheatre proper and several thousand more in the colonnades and there is room for additional hundreds on the stage directly behind the speakers rostrum. The cost of the building was $1,000,000.

The view as pictured here was taken from an aeroplane and shows the amphitheatre turfed and open to the sky above. Directly in front of the main facade, overlooking the Nation's Capitol is the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier whose body brought from France by General Pershing was buried with impressive ceremonies on Nov. 11th, 1921, in the presence of a large multitude, including both Houses of Congress, foreign ambassadors, generals, admirals and distinguished men from all over the world. President Harding delivered the oration which was broadcasted by radio all over the country.

HISTORY OF ARLINGTON NATIONAL CEMETERY

BY an order of the Secretary of War, dated June 15, 1864, the Arlington Mansion and grounds surrounding it not exceeding two hundred acres were appropriated for a Military Cemetery, to be laid out and enclosed for the burial of all soldiers dying in the hospitals of the vicinity of Washington and Alexandria.

The boundaries of this original plat have since been extended by an order of the Secretary of War to the southern boundary of the estate, and the actual area now enclosed and constituting the National Cemetery is four hundred and eight and one-third acres.

The construction of the Mansion was commenced in 1804, but was not completed until after the war of 1812. It is said to have been modeled after the temple of Paestum near Naples. It was the residence of Robert E. Lee until 1861, when he resigned his commission in the U. S. Army to join the Rebellion, and afterwards became its most conspicuous military leader.

The main buildings on the premises have been preserved in their original appearance and condition

The six columns of the two northwestern gateways on the east front of the cemetery were a part of the north portico of the old War Department building at Washington, removed on its demolition in 1879, and the stone pillars and entablature of the "Temple of Fame," just south of the Mansion, were removed from the corridors of the Patent Office upon the restoration of that building after its partial destruction by fire, September 24, 1877.

Within the addition of the southwestern section of the enclosure is the site of Fort McPherson, one of the chain of fortifications constructed during the war of the Rebellion for the defense of Washington. It has been restored as far as practicable to its original condition.

The burials in this cemetery are mainly of those who died in hospitals in the city of Washington and vicinity, but includes also remains gathered from the battlefields of Bull Run, Manassas, Bristow Station, Chantilly and Aldie, from numerous camps and fields between the Potomac and the Rappahannock, and removals from Point Lookout, Maryland and from abandoned cemeteries in the District of Columbia, also Officers, Soldiers, Sailors, Marines and Army and Navy Nurses of the Spanish and World Wars.

The number of interments in this cemetery this date, Mar 31, 1923 is 33,377 (known 28,664 unknown 4,713)

This abridged history of the Arlington National Cemetery and "Arlington House Estate" is for the information of visitors who may visit the cemetery and are interested in its history.

TOMB OF THE UNKNOWN DEAD AND TEMPLE OF FAME, ARLINGTON NATIONAL CEMETERY.
On the Virginia hills beyond the Potomac sleep the silent hosts who died in THE WAR FOR THE UNION.

(See other side) W-337

It is consecrated ground, to which come thousands every year from the NORTH, SOUTH, EAST and the WEST, to honor those "WHO GAVE THEIR LIVES THAT THE COUNTRY MIGHT LIVE." It is a WORTHY PILGRIMAGE. Near the TEMPLE OF FAME, whose columns proclaim the distinguished names thus chosen for peculiar honor, stands another memorial, the monument of the UNKNOWN DEAD. Two thousand one hundred and eleven nameless soldiers are gathered here in one common grave, deprived of the individual measure of FAME which each one by his DARING and DYING MERITED, and denied the poor desert of recognition even of identification. Their NAMES, their HOMES, their FRIENDS, ALL WERE UNKNOWN.

"THE BIVOUAC OF THE DEAD"

The muffled drum's sad roll has beat
The soldier's last tattoo;
No more on Life's parade shall meet
That brave and fallen few.

On Fame's eternal camping-ground
Their silent tents are spread,
And Glory guards, with solemn round,
The bivouac of the dead

No rumor of the foe's advance
Now swells upon the wind
No troubled thought at midnight haunts
Of loved ones left behind.

No vision of the morrow's strife
The warrior's dream alarms.
No braying horn nor screaming fife
At dawn shall call to arms.

Sons of the dark and bloody ground,
Ye must not slumber there.
Where stranger steps and tongues resound
Along the heedless air.

Your own proud land's heroic soil
Shall be your fitter grave;
She claims from war his richest spoil
The ashes of her brave.

The neighing troop, the flashing blade,
The bugle's stirring blast,
The charge, the dreadful cannonade,
The din and shout are past.

Rest on, embalmed and sainted dead!
Dear as the blood you gave!
No impious footsteps here shall tread
The herbage of your grave.

Nor shall your glory be forgot
While Fame her record keeps,
Or Honor points the hallowed spot
Where Valor proudly sleeps

Nor wreck, nor change, nor winter's blight,
Nor Time's remorseless doom,
Shall dim one ray of holy light
That gilds your glorious tomb

COL THEODORE O'HARA'S ELEGIAC

84928

Colonel O'Hara's classic verse is the noblest martial elegy in the language, the lines have in them the measured tread of the funeral march, the solemnity of the sacred surroundings, the hallowed hush of Arlington.

The quatrains, lettered in brass on tablets here and there through the grounds speak for us the spirit of the place.

Colonel Theodore O'Hara served throughout the Mexican War in the regular army. During the War of the Rebellion he served in the Confederate Army. This celebrated poem was written and read by O'Hara in 1847, on the occasion of the reinterment at Frankfort, of the volunteer soldiers of Kentucky who had fallen in the Mexican War. Colonel O'Hara is buried at Frankfort, Kentucky.

The Mansion House of Mount Vernon occupies a beautiful site overlooking the Potomac River. The house was built in 1743 by Lawrence, half-brother of George Washington. The name Hunting Creek was changed to Mount Vernon in honor of Admiral Vernon, under whom Lawrence had served against Spain. In 1747, George came to live at Mount Vernon, with Lawrence. Two years after the death of Lawrence, in 1752, the title of the estate passed to Washington.

C. T. AMERICAN ART

Greetings from

MOUNT VERNON

Va.

MOUNT VERNON

The Mansion House of Mount Vernon occupies a beautiful site overlooking the Potomac River. The house was built in 1743 by Lawrence, half-brother of George Washington. The name Hunting Creek was changed to Mount Vernon in honor of Admiral Vernon, under whom Lawrence had served against Spain. In 1747, George came to live at Mount Vernon, with Lawrence. Two years after the death of Lawrence, in 1752, the title of the estate passed to Washington.

The association of Washington with the place during his lifetime and the presence of his tomb here made Mount Vernon a shrine of patriotism. The Mount Vernon Ladies' Association, founded by Miss Ann Pamela Cunningham, of South Carolina, acquired a two-hundred acre tract, including the mansion, wharf and outbuildings in 1858. Since that time the tract has been enlarged to four hundred and seventy-five acres. The Association derives its income from the admission fee. This income has made possible the maintenance of the property and the introduction of all proper means of protection. The members of the Association serve without remuneration.

In the rear, or river front, of the house are shaded lawns; in front, or land front, are lawns and gardens; disposed about the grounds are the outbuildings of a Virginia farm.

The Flower Garden is quaint with boxwood hedges, which are reported to have been set out in Washington's time. Directly across the bowling green from the flower garden is the kitchen garden. The plan for the kitchen garden was derived from the same books on gardening that were owned and consulted by Washington.

The Barn, on the south lane was built under Lund Washington's supervision in 1782. Lund Washington was the manager of the estate at the time. All materials used in the construction were found close at hand. Bricks were moulded from clay found on the estate, mortar was made by burning oyster shells in a kiln at the river's edge to obtain the lime, and then the lime was mixed with river sand. Lumber for all purposes except the shingles, which were of cypress and came from the Dismal Swamps, came from the nearby woods.

The Tomb of Washington is a severely plain structure of brick, with an arched gateway in front, above which a marble slab is inscribed, "Within this inclosure rest the remains of General George Washington." Above the door of the tomb are the words, "I am the Resurrection and the Life. He that believed in Me, though he were dead, yet shall he live."

George Washington's Bedroom is the room in which he died. It contains a collection of original furniture, the most notable of which is the bedstead on which he died. It is six feet wide, six and one-half feet long and seven feet high.

The Library is the room which constituted the headquarters of Washington, the manager of a great estate. His personal correspondence, official letters, the daily entries in his diary and his accounts were all written at the desk in this room. The desk was purchased by the President in Philadelphia before he retired. The original thermometer-barometers hang at either side of the desk. The mahogany case, the globe and a pair of the General's spectacles are original. Original Washington books and others that belonged to members of his immediate family are grouped in the first of the four built-in book cases. Of the books in the other cases many duplicate volumes were owned by Washington.

In Mrs. Washington's Sitting Room are the original Hepplewhite table and Chippendale card table. A winged chair which belonged to George Washington's mother; and side chairs which were there in Washington's time.

The Family Dining Room contains a sideboard which belonged to Washington; eight original side chairs; the high chair which was for Mrs. Washington's granddaughter, Nelly Custis; the mirrored plateau on the table which was imported from France by Washington; and the Waterford cut-glass candelabra, which are original.

In the Banquet Hall is the beautiful mantelpiece of Carrara and Siena marble, carved in Italy and presented to Washington by Samuel Vaughan of London, who also gave the two mantel vases. Other original articles are two silver bracket lamps, the clock, two large flowered vases, Chippendale-type candlestands and four landscapes in oil.

The West Parlor is one of the most interesting rooms in the Mansion. The window cornices are relics of the days when George Washington lived here. Note also the panelled walls, the decorated ceiling and door frames. Most impressive is the fine mantel with the coat of arms of the Washington family in the pediment above it. The Washington crest and the initials "GW" are cast in the iron fireback of the fireplace.

In the Music Room is the Harpsichord, imported from London in 1793 and given by Washington to Nelly Custis. On the Harpsichord is a flute, rosewood, silver mounted, and is believed to have been purchased for little John Parke Custis, also a guitar which belonged to Washington's cousin, Mrs. Fauntleroy.

In the Kitchen may be seen the crane and large iron mortar which are believed to have been used in Washington's lifetime. Also a spice box, two pewter hot water plates, a trivet, an iron stand, a bell-metal skillet and a lacquered tea caddy.
